

El Velado 2015:

El Velado shows off its best, specially in vintages like the 2015. After having a wet winter and with one of the driest and hottest summers in recent years, this mostly Garnacha blend enjoys very much the sunny vintages like this. El Velado is a very old vineyard situated over the 610 mts high. It is the first vineyard we fell in love with in Lanciego and the one that is probably better expressing the influence of the light in Lanciego.

El Velado was planted in the most eastern part of the village of Lanciego, facing mostly the west and south, and enjoying a bigger exposure. Because of this orientation, its field blend was made with majority of Garnacha with Tempranillo and some other old varieties, including white. Its 80 years old, its size, and the sculptural shape of the bush pruned vines, makes of this vineyard something very unique and special, that we wanted to bottle separately.

At the end, the 2015 with its healthy weather conditions helps to offer the best of the Garnacha. We trust these vintages offers the biggest balance and better expression of this vineyard.
